

Modular building and conversion works

Metropolitan Police Station, Seven Islands, Rotherhithe

Highlights

Continuing our excellent relationship with the Metropolitan Police Axis converted part of a leisure centre in Rotherhithe to provide a new base for police officers.

A secure wall was erected to provide a secure zone. Axis installed a modular building structure to provide an office space using a crane to hoist the new building over the leisure centre and place it in position.

Axis additionally installed new male and female locker rooms, showers and toilets. We created a new fire escape route with new doors so officers have a clear and safe route out of the premises.

Data and electrical wiring were hidden above a suspended ceiling. Axis installed all new services including plumbing, air conditioning, lighting, extraction units and electrical installations as well as the CCTV and secure entry system.
